

Sound and Vision in STEALTH

a&d 67

Causing a quiet riot, SoundArt are revolutionising the world of audio-visuals. Subtlety truly is this speaker system's trump card and, if you haven't seen them in any of the publications who are also raving about them, then now is your chance to gaze upon the wonder that is the truly ingenious SoundArt.

Today's homeowners and businesses alike yearn for subtlety, or even invisibility, when it comes to sound installs and, with the SoundArt comprising of a slim-line speaker disguised within a customised canvas, this product easily meets the requirements for anyone looking to be stylish and distinguished.

With testimonials from such figures as Channel Five's Gadget Show and photographer John Stoddart; SoundArt is definitely making an impact on those in-the-know! John Stoddart has even collaborated with SoundArt to supply some impressive images for the canvasses.

With an attractive selection of canvasses to choose from and the option to design your own print, SoundArt is set to appear in many more venues as words spreads of the true ingenuity of the product.

With canvasses available in a variety of sizes and orientations starting from the compact 40cm x 50cm to the impressive 50cm x 100cm there is a SoundArt solution for any space.

Starting at a economically respectable £995.00 inc. VAT SoundArt speakers sit at the high end of professional speaker prices. As professional musician Stuart Zender, original Bass player for band Jamiroquai, comments "The sound is fabulous and being able to customise the SoundArt system with our own design makes it completely unique."

■ For more information about the SoundArt speaker system, please log on to: www.soundartuk.com